An apple a day...

Pair unlikely details for a playful yet timeless take on wedding day décor

Crisp white blooms and luscious foliage are two of the key elements behind this styled bridal shoot – but look a little closer and you’ll notice something else, too. Nestled amongst those frothy tablecentres is the unlikely hero, the fruity beauty, the five-a-day champion... The apple! Colourful fruits (think lemons, limes, oranges et al.) are a great way to add extra zest to table decorations and arrangements, with accompanying copper accents keeping things on the right side of the sophistication scale. In tune with this sweetest of themes are strawberry-topped confections, marbled meringues and berry-flecked shards of white chocolate. Delicious! For this shoot, the simplistic met the extravagant: hand-lettered signs sit alongside glinting glassware, whilst unkempt hay bales contrast with plush greenery and ice-cream cones of blooms (no really - see above right). To the wedding party! Here, everyone plays an important part, with a triumvirate of adorable (that’s Hugo the dog and those two cherubic flower girls, FYI) supporting the elegant bridesmaid with her duties. The bride is an ethereal vision: from her gown to her hairstyle, every aspect of her look screams vintage glamour. As for the groom - well, what else would a chap of the countryside wear on the wedding day other than his favourite tweed?

Extend the theme to your cake by topping it with fresh fruit
